

REJ

REGULARLY. adv. [from regular.] In a manner concordant to rule.

If those painters, who have left us such fair platforms, had rigorously observed it in their figures, they had indeed made things more regularly true, but withal very unpleasing, Dryd.

With one judicious stroke,
On the plain ground Apelles drew
A circle regularly true. Prior.
Strains that neither ebb nor flow,
Correctly cold and regularly low. Pope.

TO REGULATE. v. a. [regula, Lat.]

1. To adjust by rule or method.
Nature, in the production of things, always designs them to partake of certain, regulated, established essences, which are to be the models of all things to be produced: this, in that crude sense, would need some better explication. Locke.

2. To direct.
Regulate the patient in his manner of living. Wise.

Ev'n goddesses are women; and no wife
Has pow'r to regulate her husband's life. Dryden.

REGULATION. n. f. [from regulate.]

REHEARSAL. n. f. [from rehearse.]

1. Repetition; recital.
Twice we appoint, that the words which the minister pronounceth, the whole congregation shall repeat after him; as first in the public confession of sins, and again in rehearsal of our Lord's prayer after the blessed sacrament. Hooker.

What dream'd my lord? tell me, and I'll requite it
With sweet rehearsal of my morning's dream. Shakesp.

What respected their actions as a rule or admonition, applied to yours, is only a rehearsal, whose zeal in asserting the ministerial cause is so generally known. South.

2. The recital of any thing previous to public exhibition.
The chief of Rome,

With gaping mouths to these rehearsals come. Dryden.

TO REHEARSE. v. a. [from rehearse.] Skinner.

1. To repeat; to recite.
Rehearse not unto another that which is told. Ecclesi.

Of modest poets be thou just,
To silent shades repeat thy verse,
'Till fame and echo almost burst,
Yet hardly dare one line rehearse. Swift.

2. To relate; to tell.
Great master of the muse I inspir'd
The pedigree of nature to rehearse,
And found the maker's work in equal verse. Dryden.

3. To recite previously to public exhibition.
All Rome is pleased, when Statius will rehearse. Dryden.

TO REJECT. v. a. [re and jacere, Lat.]
